11: Assembly Bill 42 possible changes to the State Records Committee Duties: Possibly issuing nonbinding advisory options on the denial of public records requests.

The Committee discussed at length their role in Assembly Bill 42 and the ramification of Assembly Bill 42. How should the committee handle public records request denials that are not articulated properly? Brett Kandt explained the conception of Assembly Bill 42 as well as its components.

During the discussion, Jim Earl opined the State Records Committee to reviewing or offering advisory opinions on the articulation of public records request denials would be a significant departure from the State Records Committee’s statutory mission. Mr. Earl suggested it to be more sound to have the state create or designate a “privacy officer” of sorts whose purview would be to review and provide advisory opinions on the articulation of denial for public records requests.

The Chairman asked if the State Records Committee’s role in Assembly Bill 42 is practical, given the unknown amount of request denials that are gathered throughout the state every month. The Chairman informed the Committee that the Office of the Secretary of State is currently in discussion with the Office of the Attorney General, and they will reach out to Nevada State Library, Archives and Public Records department to refine the details of Assembly Bill 42 in regards to the State Records Committee’s role in the bill.
